OUR DIFFERENCE

CONS provides the skills and expertise needed to solve today's environmental problems, and a robust community of alumni and organizations in which to thrive.

- Multiple degree options:
  - M.S. in Sustainable Development & Conservation Biology
  - Dual M.S./M.P.P. degree with School of Public Policy
  - New Masters International Program with Peace Corps
  - Multidisciplinary CONS Ph.D. program under discussion
- Multidisciplinary approach: Courses in economics, policy, and ecology
- Real-world application of multidisciplinary skills in problem-solving classes
- Well-positioned near DC
- Networking opportunities with public, non-profit, and academic sectors
- Key internships benefiting local and international conservation organizations, including WWF-CI, TNC, USFWS, USDA, USGS, NOAA, Smithsonian, Pew Trust, World Bank

OUR STUDENTS

CONS students cover the spectrum geographically, culturally, and academically. Their diverse backgrounds foster creative and novel ideas to apply to today's environmental problems.

- 35% of students international
- 54 countries represented
- 72% female, 6% minority
- On average, enter with 4+ years of work experience
- Academically outstanding and accomplished students
- Top 20% GRE scores (1327 average)
- 18 Fulbright Fellows

OUR GRADUATES

CONS graduates hit the ground running, prepared and positioned to make a difference in the conservation field on day one.

- Cultivated critical thinking and problem-solving skills
- 90% placement rate, 13% to Ph.D.
- Active, connected alumni network
- 50% live and work in DC Metro area
- 20% rate of alumni giving (highest on campus)
- Experienced in the field through internships, problem-solving courses, and broad pre-CONS backgrounds.